The lush green hills of South India provide the world with much more than scenic beauty – they are the home of India's largest coffee plantations and situated in the hills of Bababudan, Biligiris, Coorg, Mysore, Nilgiris, Palanis and Shevaroyis, these plantations produce fine coffee grown under natural forest shade.

The favourable climate, fertile soil, scientific cultivation – much of it organic – and stringent quality control, all contribute to producing the finest mild coffee in the world today – rich, smooth and full of flavour.
